

Privacy Policy

Emilypost.com is committed to protecting the privacy of our users. We want to provide a safe, secure user experience. We will use our best efforts to ensure that the information you submit to us remains private, and is used only for the purposes described below:

In general, we gather information about all of our users collectively, such as what pages users visit most frequently. We only use such data anonymously and in the aggregate. This information helps us determine what is most important to our users, and how we can continually create a better overall experience for you.

By e-mailing questions or comments to us or responding to a survey, you are giving us permission to print your question, response or comment anonymously. We will never print your name, address, e-mail address, or other personal information without first obtaining written permission from you. At no time will we release any of your personal or contact information to any of our partners.

External Links

If you choose to follow a link from emilypost.com to another web site, you are leaving emilypost.com and the web site that this privacy policy covers. Any other sites are governed by their own privacy policies, and questions regarding their privacy policies should be directed to them.

Privacy Policy Changes

If we change our privacy policy, the changes will only affect communications received after the change goes into effect. If, at any time, you have questions or concerns about Emilypost.com's Privacy Policy, please e-mail us at privacy@emilypost.com.